Invalidating Oregon driver licenses/permits/identification cards • Beginning April 1, 2009, DMV will invalidate (hole-punch) and return surrendered driver licenses, driver permits and identification cards to customers along with their interim card or temporary permit at the time of issuance. The purpose of this change is to provide the applicant with additional identification to use with their interim card or temporary permit. This policy refers to both Oregon and out-of-state cards that are surrendered.

DMV will punch a single hole in the name and address area of the surrendered card (both Oregon and out-of-state) and hand it back to the driver along with the interim card or temporary permit. They will also advise the driver that the invalidated card should only be presented along with the interim card, that it does not serve as driving privileges and that it must be destroyed when the permanent card is received.

Stakeholders will be notified of this change prior to April 1st. It is hoped that businesses may be more willing to accept the interim card in conjunction with hole-punched cards which could facilitate more timely transactions for customers.
